Cloud-Hosted, Peer Review Panel Assignment System – Case Study

Department of Education

PROJECT OVERVIEW:

The Department of Education (ED), Office of Innovation and Improvement’s existing Peer Review paneling procedures required extensive manual input from ED staff and contractors to create panels that ensured the proper mix of reviewers, based on their experience and expertise. They also lacked a central repository for forms and information required by stakeholders. In order to streamline this process, provide the necessary links to support materials and ensure compliance with the unique rules of each competition, Longevity designed a custom, cloud-hosted system to support ED’s mission.

LONGEVITY’S ROLE:

Longevity has developed a Cloud-hosted, Panel Assignment System that automates application and reviewer panel assignments based on the unique competition rules of each grant competition. This comprehensive, FedRamp-compliant Peer Review support system leverages surveys, dashboards, role-specific workflow and back-end databases during various stages of the grant application and reviewer management lifecycles to accelerate and streamline reviewer identification and recruiting, application eligibility screening, reviewer Conflict of Interest and availability screening, peer reviews and post-award reporting.

BENEFITS REALIZED:

This competition website solution supports links to the Department of ED’s peer reviewer orientation webinar, downloadable versions of Technical Review Forms and links to other application and peer review support materials. This dynamic solution enables users to publish any required competition website changes within 24 hours of receiving feedback from competition staff.
